Artepaño

Chicano Prisoner Kerchief Art

Artepaños are kerchiefs transformed into works of art by prisoners that alternatively self-identify as Chicano, Mexican-American, Latino, and/or Hispanic. Artepaño: Chicano Prisoner Kerchief Art presents a thorough sampling of the distinctive styles found in paño art with more than 60 plates. The artworks range from simple valentines to chilling threats and grand biographical narratives. The vast majority of the work is drawn from the collection of Reno Leplat-Torti, collector of the largest assemblage of kerchief art in the world. Mr. Leplat-Torti's selections are augmented by works from the Nora Eccles Harrison Museum of Art collection and private collections.

Alex Gross
Prison of the Mind
Paintings by Alex Gross 2014 - 2023

The densely packed paintings found in Alex Gross' latest monograph Prison of the Mind extend the ideas he'd developed in the prior decade while turning the pop culture references up to eleven. Fresh themes and settings find his flawless oil paintings skating to the outer limits of the absurd. Finely rendered Darth Skater at the skate park and Cersei and Jaime Lannister, the villains from "Game of Thrones," sharing Tic-Tacs simultaneously amaze and amuse. Mr. Gross has been kept busy creating his stream-of-consciousness fine oil paintings for the past decade, but also continues to create his modified "cabinet card" paintings. An entire new body of work created on these archival photographs is also featured in Prison of the Mind. A revealing interview with writer and curator John Seed lets the reader into the inner-workings of this fascinating artist's mind.

The New Floating World
Contemporary Japanese Illustration

Long overdue, this new volume explores the latest in Japanese illustration from 30 contemporary masters. For many decades now Japan has been a leader in producing explorative art, creating new stylistic forms that continue to inspire artists the world over while they tackle a range of subject matter. Some artists are firmly entrenched in the bright and colorful world of kawaii, often incorporating a myriad of pop culture references into their work, while others are not afraid to investigate more challenging themes, from our darker pasts to the deepest recesses of our very own psyches. But whether heavily stylized or hyperrealistic, focusing on western or Japanese cultural imagery, their work continues to resonate with an ever-growing audience around the globe.

It's a Complement
Color Palettes in Graphic Design

Not all colors go together, it takes a nuanced approach to combine them in ways that both complement each other while creating a cohesive design that reflects both the client's visual identity and contemporary trends in colorways. It's a Complement showcases the latest in color palette creation by some of the world's top talents as they navigate the colors of the spectrum. Beginning with a treatise on color psychology, the editors provide context before launching into exploration of modern color theory. From the bold maximalism of high saturation, to the more subdued minimalism of low saturation and the neutral greys, blacks and whites, no stone is left unturned. Features projects in visual identity, packaging, promotion design and more across a wide swath of media.

Jason REVOK

REVOKInstruments

For the past decade, Jason REVOK has focused his prodigious energy and talent on a second act. The artist rose to world-wide renown as a graffiti writer, but moved from Los Angeles to Detroit to re-tool (both literally and figuratively). When he was new to Detroit, he spent much of his time collecting abandoned materials to create assemblages of wood and metal that were intricately cut, arranged and painted. At this time, he forged a lasting relationship with Library Street Collective and began showing in their gallery. He created an entire environment for himself in which to work – his newer explorations required tools that didn't exist, so he created his own. Ever since, REVOK has been testing the capabilities and limits of his custom tools, creating a decisive new vocabulary in the process. Instruments ties this incredible collection in a bow!

The Disposable Skateboard Bible

The skateboard decks documented in this special collection are immaculately photographed and laid-out for maximum graphic glory. In "The Bible", the visuals take center stage, but the fascinating vignettes and recollections provided by an A-list of skateboarding personalities from Tony Hawk to Mike Vallely, Mark Gonzales to Stacy Peralta bring context to the aesthetic mayhem. The board graphics within The Disposable Skateboard Bible are broken down by decade: (beginning in 1960) documenting some of the earliest deck designs; through the 70s and the game-changing advent of urethane wheels; the 80s with its ups and downs, big decks and mass-market popularity; finally, the graphic chaos of the 90s through the turn of the millennium. This book is a blue chip, must-have reference for any graphics library.

A Short History of Type

Type is still the anchor of good design and communication. In this chunky, linen-covered hardback we trace the development of every significant typeface since the 15th century to the present. Visually stunning, with original typefaces, fascinating texts delve into the design history of each font. For designers and typographic specialists its a mine of information, reflecting the dramatic developments in print and now electronic technology. For anyone interested in the roots of design, it's an enormously satisfying volume. There are a few very expensive specialist books on type out there and then a host of rather lightweight volumes. A Short History of Type bridges that gap brilliantly – all the best attributes of the former, but with a reasonable, good value price-point. The perfect gift for every design student.

Sans in Use

Creative Typefaces and their Applications

In the world of typography, it is not uncommon to see combinations of serif and sans serif typefaces in the same design. However, it takes skill to combine them in a way to avoid unwanted graphic tension or clashing fonts, and ensure maximum legibility of the text in the design.

From font weights to classifications, each typeface has its own distinct personality, and should be carefully paired to convey the right tone and mood of the design. Nation of Graffiti Artists

NOGA, or Nation of Graffiti Artists was the utopian vision of Jack Pelsinger, who begged the city for a studio where kids of all talent levels could further their interests in the arts. The 1970s were a time in New York's history where a request like this could be accommodated, the city leased the group a run-down storefront for $1 dollar a month in 1974. Like moths drawn to a light, the kids showed up, hundreds of them.

A ragtag bunch of teenagers helped him clear garbage from the space and build it out (while covering it in tags and pieces, of course). For some of them, it was the first time holding a brush or spray can. Some had painted a few trains before, and soon some of the biggest names of the era became regulars (SCORPIO, BLOOD TEA, ALI, STAN 153, SAL 161 and CLIFF 159).

Joe Conzo

Born in the Bronx

A Visual Record of the Early Days of Hip Hop

The work of pioneering photographer Joe Conzo forms the backbone of this crucial documentary journey through Hip Hop's formative years. Curator and writer Johan Kugelberg builds on this foundation by gathering the scattered remains of a movement that had its eye on the future from day one. The energetic flyer artwork of Buddy Esquire provides another aesthetic pillar of the book and is supported by personal contributions from influential creators including Grandmaster Caz, LA Sunshine, JDL, MARE 139 and Grandwizzard Theodore. A foreword by Legendary DJ and Bronx native, Afrika Bambaataa and hip hop timeline by bestselling author, Jeff Chang round out this important collection and add further context to the movement's explosive early period.

Japanese Graphic Design

Japanese Graphic Design is perhaps the most comprehensive look yet at the design aesthetic that still leads the world with its perfect blend of elegance and simplicity. The book launches with a survey of several Japanese masters of the last few decades that exemplify these design principles through their diverse graphic work. From Norito Shinmura and his beautiful nature inspired graphics to Shun Sasaki's maximalist approach and bold use of color. With in-depth interviews we gather rare insight into both their creative processes and the cultural environment that allowed their design output to flourish and find resonance. The last chapter showcases brand new cross category work either inspired by the likes of the great designers profiled or representing the masters of tomorrow.

Down to Earth

Rammed Earth Architecture

An ancient building method that has experienced a renaissance in recent years, rammed earth is a wall building technique that uses earth, chalk, lime and gravel as raw materials. Naturally insulating, non-combustible, and durable, they can be labor intensive to construct without machinery and are susceptible to water damage if not properly protected or maintained. Nevertheless, rammed earth buildings are found on almost every continent, in a range of environments from the humid, to the semi-arid and temperate – from simple single-family dwellings to large and complex multistory buildings. Down to Earth is a compilation of some of the most interesting recent examples of this interesting and unusual building technique.

The Medium is the Massage

An Inventory of Effects

Marshall McLuhan's The Medium is the Massage remains his most entertaining, provocative and piquant book. With every technological and social advancement, McLuhan's proclamation that "the media work us over completely" becomes more evident and plain. McLuhan suggests modern audiences enjoy MainStream media as soothing, enjoyable, and relaxing; however, the pleasure we find in the MainStream media is deceiving, because/as/since the changes between society and technology are incongruent, perpetuating an Age of Anxiety.

War and Peace in the Global Village

A Celebration of Women in Design Today

Marshall McLuhan's War and Peace in The Global Village is a collage of images and text that sharply illustrates the effects of electronic media and new technology on man. Initially published in 1968, this text is regarded as a revolutionary work for its depiction of a planet made ever smaller by new technologies. A mosaic of pointed insights and probes, this text predicts a world without centres or boundaries. It illustrates how the electronic information travelling around the globe at the speed of light has eroded the rules of the linear, literate world.

Fucked Up + Photocopied

Instant Art of the Punk Rock Movement

Raw, brazen and totally intense, Fucked Up + Photocopied is a collection of frenetic flyers produced for the American punk scene between 1977 and 1985. Many were created by the musicians themselves and demonstrate the emphasis within the punk scene on individuality and the manic urge of its members to create things new. Images were compiled out of whatever material could be found, often photocopied and, still warm, stapled to the nearest telephone pole to warn the world about next week's gig.

Complex Geometry

New York City Housing Authority, Brooklyn

In 2018 photographer Ian Reid set out to photograph 23 public housing developments in Brooklyn from above. The images are framed by the streets they are defined by, often showing how they look with the changing seasons. Gentrification and development have changed the surroundings of the public housing, but the buildings and its residents for the most part stay the same. Complex Geometry respects the true residents of Brooklyn and pays homage to where Reid grew up and still spends a great deal of his time.

Anywhere, California

Anywhere, California is another close look by Rudy VanderLans into the cultural landscape of his favorite subject, the Golden State. Whether it's the garage where Apple started in Los Altos, or the former location where the Manson Family lived in Chatsworth, or an anonymous abandoned storefront in Calexico, VanderLans finds beauty in the unlikeliest of locations. Yet he rarely divulges the why or what of his photographs. Instead he stresses that things aren't always what they appear to be, leaving much to the imagination of the reader.

Still Lifes, USA

Upon his arrival in the US some 36 years ago, Rudy VanderLans embarked on a pan-American bus trip from New York to California. Overwhelmed by the experience, he rarely took out his camera. In 2016 he set out to retrace his route, this time with camera in hand and a determination to record the experience. The haunting work that resulted from his journey, creates the second entry in a trilogy of books that began with Still Lifes, California. These postcards from the road evoke both tranquility and solitude, entropy and loneliness.

HuskMitNavn

Family Fun Coloring Book

In this offbeat, whimsical coloring book, Danish artist HuskMitNavn renders family scenes that simultaneously depict both the enjoyable and challenging parts of parenthood. There is nothing cynical about the artist's approach, though — the humor and pure joy within these vignettes makes an unambiguous argument that bringing up children is all worth it. The Family Fun Coloring Book is printed on quality paper and perforated on the edge, so children and adults can share the joy as they color a mini HuskMitNavn masterpiece for their wall or fridge.

Ana Bianchi

The Swimmers

Paper Cut-Outs with Matisse

In Ana Bianchi's latest children's book, kids will read first of Matisse's life and the circumstances that led to his paper cut-outs, then get a step-by-step guide to creating their own Matisse-style collages. Bianchi's versatile illustrations capture the fierce color and compositional nuances of Matisse's work, and her simple, engaging text teaches useful art terms like composition, palette, crop and sketch while outlining the artist's methods in a way that's sure to inspire young artists to create their own collage masterpieces.

Ana Bianchi

The Sailor Who Loved to Draw

Anton the mustachioed sailor never voyages anywhere without his beloved sketchbook. But what is the fate of ink and paper when met with a terrible storm at sea? What becomes of a thoughtful, creative sailor when his drawings are water-stained and ruined? This classic written and illustrated by Ana Bianchi presents a charming, funny tale of loss and redemption through beautiful black-and-white line art with lively splashes and swirls of color, and reminds readers of the importance of finding creative new ways to pursue their passions.

Zebedee Helm

Kit & Willy's Guide to Art

Zebedee Helm takes more than a dozen of the world's major art movements and casts his delightful take on each through the wit of his brilliant characters Kit, the Montana cowboy and his sausage dog, Willy. Parents will laugh and children will learn as they take a virtual tour together through rooms in a museum representing Impressionism, Futurism, Abstract Art, Pop and Performance art and nine other riotous movements.

Zebedee Helm

Kit & Willy's Guide to Buildings

The second volume in Zebedee Helm's wonderfully irreverent series, Kit and Willy's Guide to Buildings examines iconic architecture around the world. With hilarious commentary and dialogue, we learn that these days architects design buildings at funny angles on purpose, but when the leaning tower of Pisa was built, it was DEFINITELY a MISTAKE. Full of charming illustrations in the author's signature style which make this sure to be a classic and a worthy successor to Kit and Willy's Guide to Art.

HuskMitNavn

The Wrong Book

The Wrong Book is a humorous book geared for early learners where red is blue, happy is sad, night is day and mom and dad are aliens. Artist and illustrator HuskMitNavn's unique and bold illustrations only ratchet up the absurdity as a picture of a banana is accompanied by the word apple, and the reader is left to decide what is real, the object or the word. Completely wrong in just the right way, this children's book plays with language and meaning just enough to provoke thoughtful laughs along the way.
