Faces

The Art of Seeing and Being Seen

Faces explores the timeless art of portraiture as both an act of looking outward and a journey inward. Bringing together works across painting, illustration, and mixed media, the book invites readers to reflect on what our faces reveal — and conceal — about our identities, emotions, and lived experiences.

Structured into two parts, it first considers the portrait as a way of perceiving others, then examines the self-portrait as an intimate conversation between artist and self. Through raw emotions, confessions, and reinterpretations of form, Faces shows how artists continue to challenge the boundaries of representation, asking us not only who we see, but also how we see.

Eugene Cheong
Cowards Don't Go To Heaven
The Scribblings of A Lost Creative Soul Who Found Paradise

From Eugene Cheong — Asia's most awarded advertising creative and one of D&AD 50 best copywriters — comes a profanity-laced, beautifully chaotic manifesto that refuses to be housebroken.

Cowards Don't Go To Heaven is a creative survival manual built on eight habits: Courage, Idealism, Curiosity, Playfulness, Free-spiritedness, Intuition, Authenticity, and Persistence. Four decades of insights collide with Scripture, philosophy, and brutal honesty. Think Winston Churchill meets Bill Hicks — with 71 illustrations punctuating the mayhem.

Alex Pardee

Doppelgängers

The Movie Monster Mayhem of Alex Pardee

Inspired by his undying love of horror films Alex Pardee has been painting portraits of his favorite monsters, mutants and maniacs for nearly 20 years. Doppelgängers collects over 275 hand-painted creatures, an autobiographical anthology of sorts, depicting the characters from the terrifying films devoured by the artist over the course of 40 years. The monograph features a parade of serial killers, demons, aliens and psychopaths, from early Universal monsters in melancholy black and white to modern horrors captured in full bloody color. The freaks of cult classics rub shoulders with the slick killers of modern blockbusters, all captured with Pardee's signature deranged style and a sense of childlike delight.

Brightmares & Deadlines

The Art of Alex Pardee

This collection is a WonderTwins of sorts, a 2-for-one featuring two distinct series of paintings by Alex Pardee. First are the "BRIGHTMARE" paintings in full color (along with some short stories), followed by a collection of the artist's "DEAD-LINE" black and white drawings. Inspired by the idea of taking random mix tapes, hand-made zines, and happy children's books, dumping them in a blender, pureeing them on high, and then pouring them over the depths of Pardee's darkest nightmares. The tome is packed with over a hundred illustrations, most of which have not been published in previous books. Also contained between the pages are ten short stories and monologues that have accompanied select characters and paintings over the years.

Girls Invented Punk Rock

Stories and Photos From the Frontlines

Girls Invented Punk Rock presents a range of amazing work from female photographers from the late 70s and 80s, to some still carrying the torch in today's punk scene, all focused on the west coast punk movement. The photographs take center-stage, presented in a clean, focused layout, with contextual material that lends a wider scope. Interviews draw out intention and influences, favorite bands and personalities, and the challenges of operating in a male dominated space, both BITD and today. Ephemera and process-oriented materials from film to equipment further raises the interest, offering a roadmap for someone, anyone, to pick up a camera and DIY.

Nation of Graffiti Artists

Nation of Graffiti Artists aspired to a utopian vision - a studio where kids of all talent levels could further their interests in the arts. The city leased the group a run-down storefront in 1974. Like moths drawn to a light, the kids showed up, hundreds of them. A ragtag bunch of teenagers helped clear garbage from the space and build it out. For some of them, it was the first time holding a brush or spray can, others had painted a few trains before, and soon some of the biggest names of the era became regulars.

It's a Complement

Color Palettes in Graphic Design

It's a Complement showcases the latest in color palette creation by some of the world's top talents as they navigate the colors of the spectrum. Beginning with a treatise on color psychology, the editors provide context before launching into exploration of modern color theory. From the bold maximalism of high saturation, to the more subdued minimalism of low saturation and the neutral greys, blacks and whites, no stone is left unturned.

War & Peace in the Global Village

Marshall McLuhan's War and Peace in The Global Village is a collage of images and text that sharply illustrates the effects of electronic media and new technology on man. Initially published in 1968, this text is regarded as a revolutionary work for its depiction of a planet made ever smaller by new technologies. A mosaic of pointed insights and probes, this text predicts a world without centres or boundaries. It illustrates how the electronic information travelling around the globe at the speed of light has eroded the rules of the linear, literate world.

Down to Earth

Rammed Earth Architecture

An ancient building method that has experienced a renaissance in recent years, rammed earth is a wall building technique that uses earth, chalk, lime and gravel as raw materials. Rammed earth buildings are found on almost every continent, in a range of environments from the humid, to the semi-arid and temperate – from simple single-family dwellings to large and complex multistory buildings. Down to Earth is a compilation of some of the most interesting recent examples of this interesting and unusual building technique.

Zebedee Helm

Kit & Willy's Guide to Buildings

The second volume in Zebedee Helm's wonderfully irreverent series, Kit and Willy's Guide to Buildings examines iconic architecture around the world. With hilarious commentary and dialogue, we learn that these days architects design buildings at funny angles on purpose, but when the leaning tower of Pisa was built, it was DEFINITELY a MISTAKE. Full of charming illustrations in the author's signature style which make this sure to be a classic and a worthy successor to Kit and Willy's Guide to Art.

HuskMitNavn
The Wrong Book

The Wrong Book is a humorous book geared for early learners where red is blue, happy is sad, night is day and mom and dad are aliens. Artist and illustrator HuskMitNavn's unique and bold illustrations only ratchet up the absurdity as a picture of a banana is accompanied by the word apple, and the reader is left to decide what is real, the object or the word. Completely wrong in just the right way, this children's book plays with language and meaning just enough to provoke thoughtful laughs along the way.
